

over and that the strike has been effectively broken."

"How much has the strike cost the city so far?"

"I cannot answer that question just now," he replied, "because of the broken time of many of the street cleaners and for the reason that we have not yet received all vouchers and bills. By Thursday we shall have expended $136,700, and probably the cost will be $200,000 or $225,000, including transportation for the strike breakers from many cities, such as Boston, Buffalo, Bridgeport, Philadelphia, Baltimore and other places, whence we have drawn through detective agencies and other sources for men to take the place of the strikers."

"Then there is the cost of their work and the expenses of the commissariat department. I don't know yet what will be the total cost of conducting that department, but yesterday to one of the stables where the strike breakers are housed we sent food and other supplies valued at $700."

Return Fare for Strike Breakers.

"The strike breakers whom we brought here and will not need now will be returned at our cost to the cities from which they came, as it would be unfair to them to let them shift for themselves, and we don't want to turn men out of employment upon the city."

"Where does your money for all this come from?"

"From our own appropriation," replied Mr. Edwards. "We have already drawn from the Controller $100,000, some of which has been taken from the surplus of other commissioners and from the appropriation for 'The City Record.'

The second part of this statement apparently is not denied by the Governor.

NO HOPE FOR BEATTIE?

Believed There Will Be No Commutation of Death Sentence.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 14.—After a brief conference to-day with counsel for Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., under sentence of death for wife murder, Governor Mann announced that his decision in the matter would be made public early tomorrow. While the Governor declined to-night to indicate what action he would take, a careful review of to-day's events indicated that there would be no commutation of sentence and very slight chance of a respite. Beattie is sentenced to die in the electric chair on November 24.

What purported to be an affidavit signed by Paul C. Beattie, a cousin of the murderer and the witness on whose evidence the jury largely based its verdict of guilty, figured in the effort to save the prisoner to-day. Although this affidavit, sworn before Walter C. Baldwin, a notary public of Washington, on October 21, was shown to Governor Mann, it was not filed with him, and apparently had little effect on the future course of the executive.

In this affidavit, which Paul Beattie repudiated, he is alleged to have said that Henry C. Beattie, Jr., made no confession to him subsequent to the murder. When newspaper reference was made on Saturday last to the existence of an alleged affidavit Paul Beattie went to Police Headquarters and made sworn affidavit that he signed no papers while in Washington.

The fact that Governor Mann did not ask that these papers be left with him was accepted as meaning that he had already made up his mind.

URGES PRICE COMMISSION

Wisconsin University Head Advances Idea at Harvard.

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 14.—The regulation of prices by a national commission similar to the Interstate Commerce Commission, rather than the general dissolution by the government of the so-called trusts, was urged by Charles R. Van Hise, president of the University of Wisconsin, in an address on "Concentration in Industry" to-day. Dr. Van Hise is a close personal and political friend of Senator La Follette. He said:

"Well, that is a big question," said Mr. Edwards. "You see, we cannot very well lay down any law governing a man's action in that respect, but I think that the lesson of this strike and the failure of the munitiories to intimidate the city will be a warning and an impressive example to any body of city employees who may hereafter imagine that the city administration may be defied and the public outraged with impunity."

No Need for More Men.

"Do you intend to bring in any more strike breakers?"

"No," said Mr. Edwards, emphatically. "We have had enough of them, and we have enough of them for our purposes. I have wired to all our 'field' men in other cities to stop making any more enlistments for this department, and I have informed all agencies which have supplied us with men that we shall not require any more. In fact we now have a surplus of fifty strike breakers. Practically all the wheels of our department were turning to-day, and before to-morrow afternoon all of them will be running. By that time I expect to have more than three thousand men at work."

"When do you expect to have the town cleaned up and normal conditions restored in the streets and in your department?"

"We are confident that we shall have all the garbage removed within the next two or three days, and that within a week, at the latest, normal conditions in all the boroughs will be restored."

"How will you meet the requirements of the civil service law?"

"By a process of elimination," said Mr. Edwards. "We first shall get clear of the hired drivers, in order that their places may be filled by drivers from the civil service lists but as many of those men have stood the brunt of the battle with all the rest of us, facing danger and death, we shall try to get them on the lists, and just because they showed courage against great odds we are inclined to give them the preference for places as permanent positions in our department."

New Men for Civil Service Jobs.

With this object in view, I asked James Crossman, president of the Municipal Civil Service Commission, to supply me with two thousand labor blanks. These I shall send to all the stables in Manhattan, The Bronx and Brooklyn, asking the superintendents and the foremen of the stables to have all those who are not on the civil service lists to fill them. Those who come up to the requirements will be employed."

This will apply to all of our twenty-three stables, with the exception of stables G, in Manhattan, and D, in Brooklyn, loyal stables, whose drivers are already working under civil service requirements.

We now have 200 civil service men 20 in Manhattan and 20 in Brooklyn. To get the requisite number of men we have decided to advertise in the newspapers, showing the attractiveness of the jobs, and as soon as we get applicants we shall try to get them on the civil service lists. Once more we shall put them at once to work, in this way the consideration of trying to have garbage removed by contract, as in the old days, will be eliminated."

The new workers made great strides upon the piles of garbage to the lower East Side and in "Little Italy," from 10th street up to the Harlem River. From the lower East Side 20 cartloads of garbage were taken to the Clinton street and the Stanton street dumps, while 20 loads were removed from "Little Italy." Mr. Edwards said the part of the city in the best condition was north of 30th street. He expects to have this section thoroughly cleaned up by this evening. The men are to work from 8:30 a. m. to 3 p. m. He does not plan to have any night work done for two or three weeks.

Commissioner Edwards sent a circular letter to each of the 2,400 strikers charging him with absence from rollcall and refusing to go to work on November 2, with conduct prejudicial to good order and discipline and with general disobedience of orders, and informing him to appear before the commissioner to make an explanation of the charges. This notice was in compliance with charter provisions. The first hearing on these charges will be at 10 a. m. Monday.

DIX SAYS HE DIDN'T SAY IT

Strike Arbitration Not Mentioned

Tribune Didn't Say It Was.

Albany, Nov. 14.—Denial was made by Governor Dix to-day that he said in New York last Sunday that he believed the strike of street cleaners of that city should be submitted to arbitration. The Governor gave out this statement:

"On being asked Sunday evening as to whether the strike situation in New York City, I emphatically said that the strike was most deplorable, but I believed the city officials had the matter well in hand. Arbitration was never mentioned. The fault lies with the men who work out with those who advise them. The employees of the Street Cleaning Department have always known that street cleaning and removal of garbage and ashes must be accomplished, and in accepting their positions they became parties to the contract to perform the services in those positions. The men have the matter well in hand, but I am not offering any advice to them, but if the matter were brought to my attention I would advise both sides to get together. Business men do."

The second part of this statement apparently is not denied by the Governor.

Believed There Will Be No Commutation of Death Sentence.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 14.—After a brief conference to-day with counsel for Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., under sentence of death for wife murder, Governor Mann announced that his decision in the matter would be made public early tomorrow. While the Governor declined to-night to indicate what action he would take, a careful review of to-day's events indicated that there would be no commutation of sentence and very slight chance of a respite. Beattie is sentenced to die in the electric chair on November 24.

What purported to be an affidavit signed by Paul C. Beattie, a cousin of the murderer and the witness on whose evidence the jury largely based its verdict of guilty, figured in the effort to save the prisoner to-day. Although this affidavit, sworn before Walter C. Baldwin, a notary public of Washington, on October 21, was shown to Governor Mann, it was not filed with him, and apparently had little effect on the future course of the executive.

In this affidavit, which Paul Beattie repudiated, he is alleged to have said that Henry C. Beattie, Jr., made no confession to him subsequent to the murder. When newspaper reference was made on Saturday last to the existence of an alleged affidavit Paul Beattie went to Police Headquarters and made sworn affidavit that he signed no papers while in Washington.

The fact that Governor Mann did not ask that these papers be left with him was accepted as meaning that he had already made up his mind.

URGES PRICE COMMISSION

Wisconsin University Head Advances Idea at Harvard.

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 14.—The regulation of prices by a national commission similar to the Interstate Commerce Commission, rather than the general dissolution by the government of the so-called trusts, was urged by Charles R. Van Hise, president of the University of Wisconsin, in an address on "Concentration in Industry" to-day. Dr. Van Hise is a close personal and political friend of Senator La Follette. He said:

"Well, that is a big question," said Mr. Edwards. "You see, we cannot very well lay down any law governing a man's action in that respect, but I think that the lesson of this strike and the failure of the munitiories to intimidate the city will be a warning and an impressive example to any body of city employees who may hereafter imagine that the city administration may be defied and the public outraged with impunity."

No Need for More Men.

"Do you intend to bring in any more strike breakers?"

"No," said Mr. Edwards, emphatically. "We have had enough of them, and we have enough of them for our purposes. I have wired to all our 'field' men in other cities to stop making any more enlistments for this department, and I have informed all agencies which have supplied us with men that we shall not require any more. In fact we now have a surplus of fifty strike breakers. Practically all the wheels of our department were turning to-day, and before to-morrow afternoon all of them will be running. By that time I expect to have more than three thousand men at work."

"When do you expect to have the town cleaned up and normal conditions restored in the streets and in your department?"

"We are confident that we shall have all the garbage removed within the next two or three days, and that within a week, at the latest, normal conditions in all the boroughs will be restored."

"How will you meet the requirements of the civil service law?"

"By a process of elimination," said Mr. Edwards. "We first shall get clear of the hired drivers, in order that their places may be filled by drivers from the civil service lists but as many of those men have stood the brunt of the battle with all the rest of us, facing danger and death, we shall try to get them on the lists, and just because they showed courage against great odds we are inclined to give them the preference for places as permanent positions in our department."

New Men for Civil Service Jobs.

With this object in view, I asked James Crossman, president of the Municipal Civil Service Commission, to supply me with two thousand labor blanks. These I shall send to all the stables in Manhattan, The Bronx and Brooklyn, asking the superintendents and the foremen of the stables to have all those who are not on the civil service lists to fill them. Those who come up to the requirements will be employed."

This will apply to all of our twenty-three stables, with the exception of stables G, in Manhattan, and D, in Brooklyn, loyal stables, whose drivers are already working under civil service requirements.

We now have 200 civil service men 20 in Manhattan and 20 in Brooklyn. To get the requisite number of men we have decided to advertise in the newspapers, showing the attractiveness of the jobs, and as soon as we get applicants we shall try to get them on the civil service lists. Once more we shall put them at once to work, in this way the consideration of trying to have garbage removed by contract, as in the old days, will be eliminated."

The new workers made great strides upon the piles of garbage to the lower East Side and in "Little Italy," from 10th street up to the Harlem River. From the lower East Side 20 cartloads of garbage were taken to the Clinton street and the Stanton street dumps, while 20 loads were removed from "Little Italy." Mr. Edwards said the part of the city in the best condition was north of 30th street. He expects to have this section thoroughly cleaned up by this evening. The men are to work from 8:30 a. m. to 3 p. m. He does not plan to have any night work done for two or three weeks.

Commissioner Edwards sent a circular letter to each of the 2,400 strikers charging him with absence from rollcall and refusing to go to work on November 2, with conduct prejudicial to good order and discipline and with general disobedience of orders, and informing him to appear before the commissioner to make an explanation of the charges. This notice was in compliance with charter provisions. The first hearing on these charges will be at 10 a. m. Monday.

DIX SAYS HE DIDN'T SAY IT

Strike Arbitration Not Mentioned

Tribune Didn't Say It Was.

Albany, Nov. 14.—Denial was made by Governor Dix to-day that he said in New York last Sunday that he believed the strike of street cleaners of that city should be submitted to arbitration. The Governor gave out this statement:

"On being asked Sunday evening as to whether the strike situation in New York City, I emphatically said that the strike was most deplorable, but I believed the city officials had the matter well in hand. Arbitration was never mentioned. The fault lies with the men who work out with those who advise them. The employees of the Street Cleaning Department have always known that street cleaning and removal of garbage and ashes must be accomplished, and in accepting their positions they became parties to the contract to perform the services in those positions. The men have the matter well in hand, but I am not offering any advice to them, but if the matter were brought to my attention I would advise both sides to get together. Business men do."

The second part of this statement apparently is not denied by the Governor.

Believed There Will Be No Commutation of Death Sentence.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 14.—After a brief conference to-day with counsel for Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., under sentence of death for wife murder, Governor Mann announced that his decision in the matter would be made public early tomorrow. While the Governor declined to-night to indicate what action he would take, a careful review of to-day's events indicated that there would be no commutation of sentence and very slight chance of a respite. Beattie is sentenced to die in the electric chair on November 24.

What purported to be an affidavit signed by Paul C. Beattie, a cousin of the murderer and the witness on whose evidence the jury largely based its verdict of guilty, figured in the effort to save the prisoner to-day. Although this affidavit, sworn before Walter C. Baldwin, a notary public of Washington, on October 21, was shown to Governor Mann, it was not filed with him, and apparently had little effect on the future course of the executive.

In this affidavit, which Paul Beattie repudiated, he is alleged to have said that Henry C. Beattie, Jr., made no confession to him subsequent to the murder. When newspaper reference was made on Saturday last to the existence of an alleged affidavit Paul Beattie went to Police Headquarters and made sworn affidavit that he signed no papers while in Washington.

The fact that Governor Mann did not ask that these papers be left with him was accepted as meaning that he had already made up his mind.

URGES PRICE COMMISSION

Wisconsin University Head Advances Idea at Harvard.

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 14.—The regulation of prices by a national commission similar to the Interstate Commerce Commission, rather than the general dissolution by the government of the so-called trusts, was urged by Charles R. Van Hise, president of the University of Wisconsin, in an address on "Concentration in Industry" to-day. Dr. Van Hise is a close personal and political friend of Senator La Follette. He said:

"Well, that is a big question," said Mr. Edwards. "You see, we cannot very well lay down any law governing a man's action in that respect, but I think that the lesson of this strike and the failure of the munitiories to intimidate the city will be a warning and an impressive example to any body of city employees who may hereafter imagine that the city administration may be defied and the public outraged with impunity."

No Need for More Men.

"Do you intend to bring in any more strike breakers?"

"No," said Mr. Edwards, emphatically. "We have had enough of them, and we have enough of them for our purposes. I have wired to all our 'field' men in other cities to stop making any more enlistments for this department, and I have informed all agencies which have supplied us with men that we shall not require any more. In fact we now have a surplus of fifty strike breakers. Practically all the wheels of our department were turning to-day, and before to-morrow afternoon all of them will be running. By that time I expect to have more than three thousand men at work."

"When do you expect to have the town cleaned up and normal conditions restored in the streets and in your department?"

"We are confident that we shall have all the garbage removed within the next two or three days, and that within a week, at the latest, normal conditions in all the boroughs will be restored."

"How will you meet the requirements of the civil service law?"

"By a process of elimination," said Mr. Edwards. "We first shall get clear of the hired drivers, in order that their places may be filled by drivers from the civil service lists but as many of those men have stood the brunt of the battle with all the rest of us, facing danger and death, we shall try to get them on the lists, and just because they showed courage against great odds we are inclined to give them the preference for places as permanent positions in our department."

New Men for Civil Service Jobs.

With this object in view, I asked James Crossman, president of the Municipal Civil Service Commission, to supply me with two thousand labor blanks. These I shall send to all the stables in Manhattan, The Bronx and Brooklyn, asking the superintendents and the foremen of the stables to have all those who are not on the civil service lists to fill them. Those who come up to the requirements will be employed."

This will apply to all of our twenty-three stables, with the exception of stables G, in Manhattan, and D, in Brooklyn, loyal stables, whose drivers are already working under civil service requirements.

We now have 200 civil service men 20 in Manhattan and 20 in Brooklyn. To get the requisite number of men we have decided to advertise in the newspapers, showing the attractiveness of the jobs, and as soon as we get applicants we shall try to get them on the civil service lists. Once more we shall put them at once to work, in this way the consideration of trying to have garbage removed by contract, as in the old days, will be eliminated."

The new workers made great strides upon the piles of garbage to the lower East Side and in "Little Italy," from 10th street up to the Harlem River. From the lower East Side 20 cartloads of garbage were taken to the Clinton street and the Stanton street dumps, while 20 loads were removed from "Little Italy." Mr. Edwards said the part of the city in the best condition was north of 30th street. He expects to have this section thoroughly cleaned up by this evening. The men are to work from 8:30 a. m. to 3 p. m. He does not plan to have any night work done for two or three weeks.

Commissioner Edwards sent a circular letter to each of the 2,400 strikers charging him with absence from rollcall and refusing to go to work